

Information Sheet

English Literature, Language and Linguistics

| | |
|--|--|
| Study title: | Episodic Memory as Intra-brain Communication |
| Principal Investigator: | Joel Wallenberg, Christine Cuskley, Tom Smulders |
| Researcher collecting current data: | Taylor Hinton |

What is this document? This document explains what kind of study we are doing, what your rights are, and what will be done with your data. If there are any special benefits or risks, they will be explained here. Please read the information carefully and retain it for your records.

Nature of the study: You are about participate in a study on memory. First, we will ask you for some general information about yourself. Then, we will ask you to remember some words and images tell us how well you recall them. Your answers will be recorded for the research but will not be identifiable to you personally. Your session should last for about 40-60 minutes. You will be given full instructions before the study begins.

Compensation: There are no known risks to participation in this study. The only benefits to you personally are the compensation for your time ($12) and any satisfaction you derive from from making a contribution to our knowledge about recollection memory.

Confidentiality: The data we collect will not be associated with your name or with any other personal details or identifying information.

Voluntary participation: Your participation is voluntary, and you may stop playing at any time for any reason. Any data you provide or produce up to this point will not be collected. To withdraw at any time after data collection has completed, contact the requester via Mechanical Turk.

Contact information: This research is being conducted by Taylor Hinton at Newcastle University. The researcher can be contacted at or t.hinton1@newcastle.ac.uk for questions or to report a research-related problem. Contact Newcastle University Research Ethics at res.policy@ncl.ac.uk if you have concerns regarding your rights as a participant in the research

By agreeing to these terms, you consent:

- that the anonymous response data you produce may be kept permanently in research archives at Newcastle University, and used for the specific research project which made them.
- to your anonymous data being used by the above-named researcher as well as by other qualified researchers, for teaching or research purposes, in professional presentations and publications.
- To your anonymous data being included in aggregate data released as part of scholarly publication.

You have the right to terminate my participation at any point. If you choose to withdraw formally, your data will be deleted.